HOBBS FAMILY

First Baptist Church

Josh Hobbs was born August 12, 1812, and died January 16, 1897. An aged pilgrim truly! he would have been sixty years old in August. His fight was a long one, but now it is over, and he is at peace. Josh Hobbs was reared in Jefferson County, Kentucky, near the village of Boston, and was a son of James Hobbs and a grandson of Hinson Hobbs of blessed memory. He established the First Baptist Church in Louisville in 1815. He joined the church when about 19 years old and was baptized by Elder Jack Dale, becoming a member of the old Long Run congregation where he worshipped for many years.

He was married to Elizabeth Frazier December 29, 1840, and lived with her fiftyseven years. He removed to the place where he died in 1856, and about this time moved his membership from the Long Run Church to Floyd's Fork where he continued a member until that congregation gave up the old house and built a new one in Fishersville. In this church he was moderator for a number of years and was ever a pillar of strength, loving his brethren and sisters in the Lord and receiving their love and esteem in return. It was there that the last funeral rites were held, after which all that remained of this good and grand man on earth was buried in the Frazier cemetery, where rest so many of his friends, including two sons who died long years ago. As a citizen he was upright and possessed a high sense of honor and justice. In his official character, for he was long a magistrate, he was always found on the side of right and yet he was of a disposition to temper justice with mercy: no one feared to trust his judgment in any case where his duty called him to act. In the church he loved peace and ever strove to keep out discord and confusion. In the last few years of his life he was greatly afflicted. He became blind, and this to him was the greatest misfortune, as it rendered him very helpless and besides this he lost his health and was a great sufferer, but through it all he trusted in the mercy and goodness of God, even to the last. He believed that a man so faithful the earthly way ever came between faith's love to God and his grand son; but clear and cheerful as his light shined on him until the last glimpse of earth faded from his mind's view.

LONG RUN BAPTIST CHURCH

HISTORICAL DATA

According to tradition, the late S. M. Talbott, and R. C. Tallaruston's notes of June 19, 1922, "this location was a place of worship from the beginning for the Hughes Station-Long Run Settlement of 1780".

The history of this church goes back farther than its formal organization date. Many pioneer churches existed and held regular services for years before establishing any definite organization.

The exact organization date of the Long Run Baptist Church is obscure. The majority of historians believe the church was formally organized in 1784 because that was the organization date used in the annual historical table of the minutes of the Long Run Association of Baptists from 1842 to about 1900.

Long Run Church became a member of the Salem Association of Baptists in 1797.

The first church building was a log cabin built prior to Abraham Lincoln's massacre in 1786.

The original structure stood in the same area as that covered by the front portion of this building. Some time before 1800, probably about 1797 or 1798, the church built a stone meeting house on the side of the "Improvement" and within the enclosure of the community burying ground. The present enclosure contains the first community burying ground.

Some time between the first Sunday in September, 1844, and the first Sunday in October, 1844, the stone building was demolished. Some of the stones from the building's walls were used for the foundation of this structure. This building was completed and dedicated in May, 1845.

It was in the old stone meeting house of the Long Run Baptist Church that the Long Run Association of Baptists was organized on September 16, 1803.

HISTORICAL MONUMENT

The front part of this building covers the traditional site of the cabin owned and presumably created by Abraham Lincoln, grandfather of Abraham Lincoln, Sixteenth President of the United States of America.

In 1967 the Great Chancellor in a letter to J. W. Fell wrote: "My maternal grandfather, Abraham Lincoln, emigrated from Rockingham County, Virginia, to Kentucky about 1781 or 1782, where a year or two later he was killed by the Indians, not in battle, but by stealth, when he was laboring to erect a fort in the forest."

It has been established that President Lincoln was mistaken about his grandfather being killed in 1782, the exact year being 1786. This land was owned by the President's grandfather from 1780 to 1786 ^{and} by his uncle, Mordecai Lincoln, for eleven years thereafter. The uncle did not relinquish complete title to the property until 1802.

The President's grandfather was killed on his own property, not far from this site. A son, Josiah Lincoln, ran one-half mile to a fort known as Mordecai Hughes Station for assistance. Mordecai Hughes Station was located one-half mile from these premises. The fact that pioneer Abraham Lincoln was killed not far from his cabin is obvious because it was from the cabin that his eldest son Mordecai Lincoln shot at the Indians, killing one of them.

The tragic death of President Lincoln's grandfather occurred in the presence of the President's father, Thomas Lincoln, then only a year old. The Lincoln family resided in Hugh's Station at the time the incident occurred. The danger from the Indians was so great that the Lincoln Cabin intended for a permanent residence was not occupied as a continuous domicile at any time by the Lincoln family. After the assassination of Abraham Lincoln the abandoned cabin was used as a school and community meeting house.

On September 8, 1786, Captain George Romeroy's subscription data listed Abraham Lincoln's widow as having loaned a gun to be used in General George Rogers Clark's campaign against the Wabash Indians. Subsequently widow Lincoln and her children moved to Washington County, Kentucky, where Thomas Lincoln married Nancy Hanks (1783-1818) on June 12, 1806. Shortly thereafter the Thomas Lincolns (1778-1851) moved to Nelson County, Kentucky, thence to Hardin (now LaRue) County, Kentucky, where President Lincoln was born on the 12th day of February, in 1809.
